Connecting Pest Management Professionals Across Australia

The voice of the Australian Pest Management Industry

Welcome.

The Australian Environmental Pest Managers Association (AEPMA) represents professional pest managers across the country, setting the industry standard for pest control practices and ensuring public safety and environmental responsibility in our field.

Through our PestCert accreditation program, we aim to provide the highest quality assurance for consumers and a benchmark for industry excellence.

Our History

Established in 1988, the Australian Environmental Pest Managers Association (AEPMA) emerged from the collective recognition by state organisations across Australia of the need for a unified national body.

AEPMA boasts a robust and diverse membership, with many of its member companies having been pioneers in Australia's professional pest management sector. This diversity strengthens AEPMA's ability to genuinely represent the industry as a whole.

AEPMA maintains excellent relationships and strong affiliations with regulatory authorities across Australia. It is also a member of the Federation of Asian and Oceania Pest Managers Associations (FAOPMA) and holds close ties, including reciprocal agreements, with pest management associations in numerous other countries.
